Application Form

Blu Matter Project acts as a liaison for qualified recipients living with Depression and/or Bipolar Disorder and a research project examining the effects of a regular yoga practice on those individuals.

For 6 months, participants will attend a minimum of 2 yoga sessions a week at IAM Yoga (680 Yonge Street) and attend monthly community events to gain appropriate information required to maintain yoga practice, as well as participate in group discussions pertaining to various aspects of exercise and mental health.

You are eligible to apply for our program if you have an interest in discovering the benefits of yoga, are 20 years of age or older, have an interest in contributing to research in yoga as an intervention for individuals with Depression and/or Bipolar Disorders, and can provide a letter from your treatment facility or physician confirming your diagnoses.

This study looks to understand how an exercise intervention, such as yoga, can aid individuals living with Depression and/or Bipolar Disorders. The study endeavor to understand how various aspects of a yoga can benefit the participants through maintaining a regular yoga practice. It will be 6 months in duration, participants will be required to participate in yoga, a minimum of twice a week, for those 6 months; while also attending monthly community events. Participants will be filling out questionnaires throughout the study to track mood states throughout the study duration.

Please complete the following application form to express your interest in this initiative with Blu Matter Project. Our team will follow up with you, and our hope is that the research project will begin in the spring. Your information on this form will not be shared and will be used for contact purposes only.
